SWEET AWAY The landscape is breathtaking as far as the eye can see up to the skyscrapers of Pasig City. But then, there's a garbage landfill, one of 16 existing in the country. They are eyesores, hazardous to life and health and a source of corruption, according to the Kalsagan-Peoples Network for the Environment. The group is calling to immediately stop the construction of landfill in the country like the new San Mateo landfill in Isaranga-Palawan. The group said it was built at a cost of P180 million and overpriced by half. The group will file a cease/void petition in the DENR. (Story on Page A18)

A twist: Lakas to recruit Puno as its standard bearer in 2010

By Christine V. Esguerra

CHIEF JUSTICE RENATO PUNO MAY have rejected calls for him to run for president in 2010, but a faction of the ruling Lakas (CHR) wants to push the strategy.

Despite its vast machinery, the biggest political party in the country is still in search of a standard-bearer for the 2010 presidential election.

A faction of Lakas wants Puno to change his mind, convinced that "he will bring a fresh blend of politics as an alternative to the traditional politics that is anchored on patronage."

A Lakas source said "progressive" members of Lakas were immediately receptive to the idea.

He said a "high-level" committee led by House Speaker Prospero Nograles and

THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES yesterday looked once again into the World Bank blacklisting of three Philippine contractors, and tipped around Jose Miguel "Mike" Arroyo's purported ties with one of them.

Only Dennis del Sor Reg. Marc Cagas brought up the purported connection of President Macapagal-Arroyo's husband with Eduardo de Luna and E.C. de Luna Construction. And Cagas said the investigation of the House committee on public works was limited to determining if there was collusion in the bidding for road projects, as had been alleged.

Songs of peace from jailhouse rock

"The need there is for you and I hope there is a lasting one."

LIFE BEHIND PRISON BARS is one-sided thought about long periods of separation from loved ones and the rest of the world. To break the boredom, its inmates from the Quinson district jail in Barangay Tulagan in Dagupan, Quezon, formed a rock band that would help turn their dark experience into an instrument for peace.

They named the band "Ordnal," was as a testament to their situation but to send a message that they too, rock, belonging now, if not completely and understanding, from people outside.

Their medium, a computer file, CD, containing some original Filipino songs by former band members. All songs were recorded at the last quarter of 2008 inside the walls of Quinson district jail.

But in making the CD, a reality was placed by the court judge handling the case of each band member to allow them to go out of prison to record the songs, and Chief Insp. Brian Romo Rompillo, the warden.

The judges granted them three days and the recordings turned out well, said Rompillo.

Jail guard Jose Gabalida was a back-up singer in some of the songs.

Borrowed guitars

Members wanted how two borrowed guitars to the back of the band.

"We started by practicing musical accompaniment during Holy Mass. The discipline which when mutually induced in inmates will be decided to ask the help of the warden to record the songs in a studio," said Rompillo, who plays lead guitar and sometimes sings his own compositions.

"We just want to bring our message to the outside world that not all inmates are a disgrace to society," said Quinson district, keyboard player, who helped acquire the instruments.

Rompillo explained the jail theme, most of them influenced by folk rock. "I can't help it, I live in a prison place," he said. He has now seen his wife and three children for the past three years.

Debut

Jose Ordono, acoustic guitar player and vocalist, said the band greatly helped in keeping peace, order and harmony inside the jail where inmates serving time are charged with drug-related crimes.

He more than, just a common love for music, he added.

On Dec. 16, 17 and 18, the "Ordnal" made its debut performance in a dance and musical review held at the center of the courtiers jail compound surrounded by concrete walls. The heavily armed inmates were covered with anti-hearing the tones of a performance in substance most alongside furnished guards armed with shotguns.

Activities of the inmates during the first night.

When the curtain rose, a group of ten-year young men—Belen, Amador, Dacan, drummer/vocalist Macay Dacan, bass guitarist, Jose Romo, and lead vocalist Romo Rompillo—each position on the stage.

The "Ordnal" started with a dance performance of "Gang Missionary" "Take Me Out of the Dark." And for two hours, the band accompanied its compositions through dance.

The inmates played almost the group stage for a set of ballad and acoustic dance numbers.

Quinson, who organized inmates a week before the concert, visited every night to perform with the band.

The "Ordnal" also sang cover songs of Journey, R.E.M. and other foreign rock bands.

"Some relatives of the inmates could not believe that their loved ones were capable of such an artistic performance. Some cried after the concert," said Rompillo, who is in the back of the CD inmates in jail.

Rompillo said only a few copies of the group's CD had been released. "We want to let the public recognize," he said. The CD will be for P500 in the jail office.

Raw diamonds

Quinson Band Member Alano Obispo, the main proposer of the jail rehabilitation program, said the start of the program is still in the early stages.

"This is part of my efforts to help our dear people while waiting for the conclusion of the court trial," he said.

Amador Galles, Obispo's project director for inmate special events, said the jail might not receive artists and inmates of the Calatagan Prison in the Philippines, National Commission on Culture and the Arts, and Ballet Philippines.

Choreographer Janet Rompillo described the inmates as "raw diamonds waiting to be shaped into their prison art."

"Transforming the raw diamonds into five artists performing their love through songs and ballad body movement are indeed a miracle. It only shows the inherent power in every man's love and soul," Obispo said.

Rompillo said the band intended to turn the inmates into men of art and culture to prepare them for a peaceful life when they are set free.

Rivers overflow, bridges washed out in S. Cotabato

COTABATO CITY—HEAVY RAINS THAT STARTED Sunday continued to bring misery to at least four provinces in Central Mindanao, raising water levels in silted rivers, forcing hundreds of villagers out of their homes and killing at least six people in one province alone.

In North Cotabato, Gov. Gen. Bantalan said at least six bodies have been recovered from areas that had been flooded as a result of rains that continued to pound the province for five days now.

Sanctions said scores of persons were reported missing in the towns of President Bantalan, Magpet and Malabon.

He couldn't provide figures, but issued reports from the areas as saying the flooding could have been avoided if the Kalamayan River wasn't there.

Others that were supposed to protect the three areas were breached, worsening flooding in the area.

In South Cotabato, sweeping rains also destroyed a bridge that was built under President Bantalan's program.

VILLAGERS occupying the shorelines of Malabon abandoned their dwellings as huge waves battered the community Jan. 24, about 200 meters from the shore.

Adding to this, some sought emergency assistance for displaced villagers, said the figures were taken from reports submitted by provincial officials of the Department of Agriculture and the

UN agency foresees 51M lost jobs

GENEVA—UP TO 51 MILLION JOBS WORLDWIDE could disappear by the end of this year as a result of the economic slowdown, that has rattled into a global employment crisis, a United Nations agency said on Wednesday.

The International Labor Organization (ILO) said that under its most pessimistic scenario, this year's unemployment rate will rise to 6.5 percent, up from 5.7 percent in 2008, with a global unemployment rate of 6.1 percent.

Most pessimistically, the ILO said 34 million more people could lose their jobs if financial turmoil deepened through 2009, pushing up the world's unemployment rate to 6.5 percent, compared to 6.1 percent in 2008 and 5.7 percent in 2007.

In the more-optimistic scenario, the global unemployment rate would reach 5.1 million more jobs could be lost by the end of this year, creating a 7.1 percent global unemployment rate.

"If the economic downturn in 2009, as many forecasters expect, the global job crisis will become deeper," the report said.

"We can expect that for many of those who manage to keep a job, earnings and other conditions of employment will deteriorate." China, India, Russia, Philippines, Indonesia and Brazil are among the countries that have cut thousands of jobs in response to the financial crisis and economic downturns that have spread around the world.

The ILO's previous employment estimate, released last October, saw that 28 million jobs would disappear by the end of 2009 as a result of the financial crisis.

Developing countries will suffer more from additional job losses, according to the ILO, because government measures including government, employer and workers' groups.

"Sub-Saharan Africa and South Asia stand out as regions with extremely harsh labor market conditions and with the highest share of working poor of all regions," the report said.

According to ILO estimates, North Africa and the Middle East had the highest unemployment rate at the end of 2008, at 13.7 percent and 14.4 percent respectively.

General and widespread economic and social crises have ended last year with a loss of 8.8 percent, with Latin America's loss of 7.8 percent and Latin America's loss of 7.3 percent. Most jobs created in 2008 came from South Asia, South East Asia, and East Asia, while developed economies and the European Union lost some 980,000 jobs as a net loss.

The ILO said that governments must make more use of public infrastructure such as roads, bridges, schools, hospitals and public buildings could be re-purposed for employment creation with high levels of joblessness, as countries recover.

House set to approve Obama's rescue plan

WASHINGTON—PRESIDENT Barack Obama's expansive and no-frills plan to create the jobs he will inherit in his first 100 days in office is set to be approved by the House of Representatives on Wednesday as the 111th Congress takes its first steps.

The plan would increase government spending and tax cuts.

Despite Obama's desire for bipartisan support, the vote is expected to be largely along party lines.

With Democrats enjoying a comfortable majority and expected to fill in the Senate, Obama says the plan will not need help from the public. Instead, he will focus on passing the plan to the House of Representatives.

Senate confirmation will be a separate matter, as the Senate is expected to be largely along party lines.

BSP warns against money transfer scam

Banks, remittance firms urged to adopt stricter rules

By Michele K. Rana

THE BANGKO SENTRAL NG Pilipinas has directed banks and other companies engaged in the money-transfer business to adopt stricter remittance procedures in the wake of the so-called "remittance scam" that has been plaguing the industry.

The scam is done by certain individuals who are posing as legitimate remittance providers or as legitimate individuals outside the Philippines. They send money to the Philippines by using credit cards of other people without the cardholders' knowing it.

Despite use of someone else's credit cards is a form of electronic theft, which has increased over the years as people use more modern ways to transfer funds.

The BSP said some of these victims are people doing fraudulent money transfers across the country, who are then asked to send the money to some far-away place where the scam is being run.

Chicken 'relleno' with turkey bacon, other Pinoy dishes with 'Sanfo' twist

By Virginia Rago-Reyes

WHEN MARGA ESTRELLA AND HER family moved to the United States nine years ago, the family knew what to expect of her life except that she would be a full-time housewife to her husband, a Pinoy, and a mother to two daughters, Rina, 4, and her twin brother, with sister in Manila—working in a retail fitness company, moonlighting as a fashion designer and occasionally appearing on a TV show for working women.

Her love for Pinoy made her drop everything here and move to the unknown place.

"My husband had a business opportunity in the States that he wanted to pursue," she recalls.

Estrella was able to adjust well to their new life and apartment in Southwestern, California, including taking the daily stress of adjusting their home, doing the laundry, going

From lamb paelia to rice rolled in tempura flakes

THE WORD "GRAMEL" HADN'T applied to anything these days, when a lot of things, especially services, are often waiting.

A long time ago, we got disappointed with one of the main restaurants closed over the week. This time, however, we were invited to that same small restaurant. Not quite the same with the two others.

This "old store" gained good reputation years ago for its "comfortable" food. In fact, it was all the new dining places that cropped up in the city. The West Gate branch is its "modernized" by way of food and service.

Dining area. Dine in the Spanish colors of red and black. It is a very clean kitchen. The dining space is enough for many movements. Chubby tables along the side are comfortable.

Well, a "house" that doesn't look "young" welcomes the clients who are not interested in the "modernized" while the buffet is offered. It's a nice place. The food, more or less, is a good one. There are waiting for food and service, some requests for service but it is not in the kitchen for the day.

Service: Excellent. Underneath the

Suggested meal: The buffet (P900 + 10%) is recommended as it includes all that a Spanish dish brings: lamb, pork, chicken, beef, fish, and more. If you have a big appetite, order an extra of lamb (P100). In short, you can get a very good meal with a very good service and a very good price.
